THE FIRST SCHEDULE

{See section 3(i)]}

CO-OPERATIVE PRINCIPLES

1. Voluntary and Open Membership.— Co-operatives are voluntary organizations, open to all persons capable of using their services and willing to accept the responsibilities of membership, without discrimination on bases of gender, social inequality, racial, political ideologies or religious consideration.

2. Democratic Member Control.— Co-operatives are democratic organizations controlled by their members, who actively participate in setting their policies and decision making. Elected representatives of these co-operatives are responsible and accountable to their members.

3. Member's Economic Participation.— Members contribute equitably and control the capital of their Co-operative democratically. At least a part of the surplus arising out of the economic results would be the common property of the co-operatives. The remaining surplus could be utilized benefiting the members in proportion to their share in the Co-operative.

4. Autonomy and Independence.— Co-operatives are autonomous, self-help organizations controlled by their members. If co-operatives enter into agreement with other organizations including Government or raise capital from external sources, they do so on terms that ensure their democratic control by members and maintenance of Co-operative autonomy.

5. Education, Training and Information.— Co-operatives provide education and training to their members, elected representatives and employees so that they can contribute effectively to the development of their Co-operatives. They also make the general public, particularly young people and leaders aware of the nature and benefits of co-operation.

6. Co-operation among Co-operatives.— Co-operatives serve their members most effectively and strengthen the co-operative movement, by working together through available local, regional, national and international structures.

7. Concern for Community.— While focusing on the needs of their members, co-operatives work for the sustainable development of communities through policies accepted by their members.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Central Government enacted the Multi-unit Co-operative Societies Act, 1942, to facilitate the organization, administration and functioning of co-operative societies with objects not confined to one State and serving the interests of members of such societies from more than one State. A number of national level co-operative societies and federations, promoted by co-operatives in the country had come up with the assistance of the Central and State Governments. The provisions in the co-operative laws in different states governing these multi-State co-operative societies varied from one another. The lack of uniformity and inadequacies in the then existing arrangement rendered it necessary to replace the Multi-unit Co-operative Societies Act, 1942 by a common comprehensive Central legislation, namely, the Multi-State Co-operative Societies Act, 1984, providing for a central authority to be responsible for their registration, promotion and supervision.

2. In view of the increasing demand of co-operative societies for more autonomy and democratic management with less control from the Central or State Government, a Committee under the Chairmanship of Choudhary Brahm Perkash was set up. The report of the said Committee suggested a model co-operative law. Based on the said report, it is proposed to replace the existing Multi-State Co-operative Societies Act, 1984 by enactment of the proposed legislation, namely, the Multi-State Co-operative Societies Bill, 2000.

3. The object of this Bill is to remove the restrictive provisions in the existing Multi-State Co-operative Societies Act, 1984 in order to provide functional autonomy and democratic management of multi-State co-operative societies. This is being ensured by deleting the provisions of the existing Act relating to restrictions on the term of office bearers of multi-State co-operative societies, prior approval of the Central Registrar for amalgamation, and for transfer of assets and liabilities or division of multi-State co-operative societies. The Central Government's power to give directions to and order supersession of the Boards of the multi-State co-operative societies have been restricted to such multi-State co-operative societies in which not less than fifty-one per cent. of the paid-up share capital or of total shares is held by the Central Government. This has been done in order to safeguard public interest.

4. In order to ensure financial management by the co-operative societies themselves, formation of subsidiary institutions by the co-operatives, concept of federal co-operative, raising of resources by receiving deposits, raising loans and grants from external sources in accordance with its bye-laws and to invest in the shares, securities or assets of any other institution without the previous approval of the Central Registrar, have been provided in the Bill.

5. The settlement of disputes is proposed by a quasi-judicial authority, namely, the Co-operative Disputes Settlement Authority, replacing the existing system of such settlement by the Central Registrar. It is envisaged that by this system the settlement of disputes would be quicker and more judicious.

6. In order to ensure minimum control by the Central or State Governments in the management of multi-State co-operative societies and to depoliticise their management, it has been proposed in the Bill that a Minister in the Central Government or State Government shall not be eligible to hold office of chairperson or vice-chairperson in such societies. The powers of the Central Government to exempt any multi-State co-operative society from the provisions of the Act or rules have been withdrawn.

7. In order to empower members of such societies and to ensure their active participation in management, adequate provisions have been made in the Bill for filing a complaint by a member for prosecution of offences, access to information and disqualifications for membership on account of non-attendance of three consecutive general body meetings or failure to use services provided by a multi-State co-operative society to the minimum level as provided in the bye-laws of such society.

8. The Bill seeks to achieve the above objects.

NITISH KUMAR.
